

You Can't Use Judge
When a Policeman
Is What You Need

The latest news from Little Rock as I write this is that the legislature has some qualms about taking any forcible action on the matter of automobile drivers' licenses.

The lawmakers are stalled on a bill which proposes to set up a separate state police driver's license division. This would mean an increase in the annual driver's license from $1 to $1.35 to finance the new office, but in return it would hold stiff examinations for drivers and would maintain individual records on persons involved in accidents.

Originally the new police division would have been given authority to revoke licenses under specified conditions but this was amended out of the bill by vote of the lower house. Rep. Dan White of Sebastian county, author of the amendment, argued successfully that only the courts ought to have authority to revoke licenses.

I don't think much of that argument. The state police ought to have authority to bar a hazy driver from the highway. Let him first lose his license through the police — then he can appeal to the courts if he wants to.

You can talk all you want to about democracy, lawfulness, and courtesies, but all of them are pretty poor stuff to a family who've been smashed up by some incompetent ass blaring down the public road.

Rep. Dan White probably makes a great speech in the Arkansas legislature but I think there are a lot of citizens like myself who feel that the time has come to end the present farce of dealing out drivers' licenses to all comers just on their say-so, and snarling up the business of revoking licenses until this supposedly severe penalty has lost its meaning.

Unless the state highway patrol is clothed with quick and decisive authority on drivers' licenses Arkansas isn't going to improve its present deplorable record of highway deaths. This is first and last a police matter. Courts should always have the power to review police action; but meanwhile dangerous drivers would be "grounded." They couldn't take the wheel again until, (1) their penalty period had expired, or (2) a court hearing decided that the police had acted too harshly.

One of the toughest highway patrols in America is Pennsylvania's. I think I am correct in reporting that the Pennsylvania police revoke drivers' licenses every day in the year for crimes no greater than repeatedly exceeding the legal speed limit. For such a technical offense a driver may be set down for two weeks. And it doesn't do him any good whatsoever to appeal to the courts. In a state patrol case in Pennsylvania any court appeal invariably sustains the police, and I know of some instances in which the courts increased the original penalty.

That's how highways are made safe in a state of dense population, with beer taverns on every street corner, and automobiles traveling virtually bumper-to-bumper.

And strong and vigilant police action is precisely what Arkansas does not have — nor will have, thanks to Rep. Dan White and the currently misled majority of the Arkansas House of Representatives.

Protecting Armor
Is Disclosed

By LEE LINDER
PHILADELPHIA (AP) The hunter, the bank guard and the bandit-chasing policeman will soon get a chance to wear body armor similar to the type now protecting Marine and Army personnel fighting in Korea.

Armor Specialties Corp., affiliated with L. W. Foster Sportswear, Inc., of Philadelphia, disclosed yesterday it has started a production on a lightweight armored vest "for the civilian."

Up to now Foster has fabricated thousands of the vest armor units for the Marines. It is the only firm manufacturing this equipment.

NAD Work Is Resumed

CANDEN, (AP) — An agreement ending a work stoppage at the Naval Ammunition Depot near here has been reported by the NAD's commanding officer.

Capt. H. S. Harnly said yesterday that 70 employees who quit work Wednesday would be back on the job Monday. Details of the dispute and the agreement were not disclosed.

STOLEN GEMS FOUND

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewelry worth $18,000 has been returned to sociolite Brenda Frazier Kelly whose Park Avenue apartment was robbed last September.

Police yesterday said they are looking for a woman who told a jeweler the gems were family heirlooms. The jeweler purchased the valuables, then learned they were stolen and turned them over to police.

Amount of Aid to Chiang Still Ike's Secret

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration stood pat today against Democratic demands for a public accounting of how much, if at all, the U. S. will back up any Nationalist raids on Red China.

But GOP leaders promised Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee confidential answers to some of their questions when Secretary of State Dulles returns from Europe.

Administration supporters lined up solidly behind Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) who told the Senate yesterday that it would be the height of folly for the U. S. to tip its hand now on Far Eastern moves.

Knowland, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, rejected a demand by Sen. Sprickman (D-Ala.) that President Eisenhower tell the country what steps and consequences may follow his order lifting Seventh Fleet restrictions against mainland raids by the Nationalists.

Knowland asserted: "The policy of the old administration was to signal in advance to the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists what our plans were."

"The men in the Kremlin and in Peking would give their eye-teeth to know what their requirements will be. But I would like to see the Communist world sit on the anxious seat for a while."

Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said Dulles had promised to detail the administration's Asiatic plans to a foreign relations Far Eastern subcommittee on his return from Europe.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., (UP) — Diplomatic observers predicted today that if President Eisenhower orders a naval blockade of China it will touch off bitter opposition in the United Nations, led by Britain and India.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, United States Pacific Fleet commander, told a congressional committee that the president was considering such a blockade and assured the members that "we can do it."

Consultations with other countries maintaining forces in the Korean war were understood to be going on in Washington, and opposition from London could be expected.

Technically, the decision on instituting such a blockade is solely the responsibility of the unified command—which is the U. S. government—but the ramifications of such a step were so far-reaching that a U. N. debate on it appeared inevitable.

Sanity Test Is Ordered for Dierks Woman

TEXARKANA, (UP)—Mrs. Opal Simmington, 49-year old central figure in a $235,000 shortage at the Bank of Dierks, has been ordered to take a 30-day sanity test.

Federal Judge Harry Lemley yesterday ordered Mrs. Simmington, former cashier of the bank, committed to the U. S. Public Health Service hospital at Fort Worth, Tex., for 30 days.

Former Cong. Boyd Tackett, Mrs. Simmington's lawyer, said he would produce Mrs. Simmington today. She is at liberty in a $7,500 bond pending investigation of the bank shortage.

American Jets Blast Two Red Planes

By ROBERT UDDICK

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Outnumbered American Sabrejets battled Communist fighters in a wingtip-to-wingtip duel high over northwestern Korea today and blasted two Red MIG-15s out of the sky.

One of the Russian built planes narrowly missed crashing into a U. S. F-86 after the Sabrejet hit it with two cannon bursts.

The screaming air battle between eight Sabrejets and 14 Red MIGs brought to four the number of Communist jets shot down by F-86 pilots this month, the Air Force said.

Today's MIG destructions were credited to Capt. Rylund J. Dewey, Aurora, Colo., and 1st Lt. Merlon R. Ricker, of Burlington, Vt.

Official Is Called in by McCarthy

By G. MILTON KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) today marked Carlisle Humelsine, deputy under secretary of state, for questioning in a spreading investigation of the State Department.

Humelsine is the man in ultimate charge of the department's security operations and its massive collection of secret files — from which witnesses have sworn that documents have mysteriously disappeared.

In three days of public hearings the special investigations subcommittee which McCarthy heads has received testimony that a special agent's report on a suspected Communist and some reports on employees with "unusual morals" are missing from personnel files.

It also heard that a derogatory letter about an employee was ordered burned by some never-named high official.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), a member of the subcommittee, announced he will "ask that Dean Acheson himself be called if Humelsine testifies that he acted under orders in not correcting the appalling situation."

Acheson, former secretary of state, has been a frequent target for criticism by both McCarthy and Mundt. McCarthy set no date for hearing Huelsine.

State May Go Back to Toll Bridges

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—The state of Arkansas, which has been out of the toll bridge business since the late '30s, may be on the verge of getting back in again.

A bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday to authorize the Highway Commission to construct, maintain and operate toll bridges within the state, or to join with the United States or other states in constructing interstate toll bridges.

While the bill was designed primarily as another effort to bring to realization the long sought bridge over the Mississippi River near Helena, its effect would be general.

Another bill which would make the state at least a limited partner in toll bridge construction has passed the Senate. The House indicated yesterday it probably also would approve when it rejected two proposed amendments to the bill.

Court Reporter Bill Is Signed

House bill No. 346 by Rowlette Miller and Hallman of Sevier has been signed into a law. The bill follows:

The Chancellor of the First Division of the Sixth Chancery District of the State of Arkansas is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to employ and appoint an official court reporter at a salary of $3,000 per annum. Affects Miller, Hempstead, Clark, Nevada, Little, Howard, Pike, Sevier.

Certainly Nothing Is Ever as Much Trouble to People as the People Themselves

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing is as much trouble to people as themselves.

That is why they have a secret envy of birds and wild animals, who seem to enjoy such freedom. Being civilized — even to the degree mankind claims — is a big nuisance. It makes a human being a lot of bother to himself.

The fight isn't just to get ahead in the world. It is a big battle each day to stay even with the day before.

Look at what happens. You go to bed at night feeling fine and fit, content with the universe. But the minute you lie down to rest from the struggle, what is the result? Decay sets in overnight.

You wake up in the morning and find you have lost ground. Your mouth tastes bad, one eye is gummy, your hair is matted, you have to harrumph three times to clear your throat, and your stomach is growling for a bite of toast.

In eight hours of sleep you have fallen completely apart. The rust of time has set in.

Back you go into the endless battle of trying to "be yourself," which really amounts each morning to a hopeless attempt to cover up the ravages of the previous day.

You shower and shave, you brush your hair and comb your teeth — or vice versa — and put a polish cloth to your shoes. You put on a freshly pressed suit and a clean shirt. Your breakfast.

All right, world, here you come human being would have the fun of falling apart gracefully and quit brushing his fists against the prison bars of time.

For this brief interlude he would know the wise liberty of the owl, who doesn't give a hoot about tomorrow.

Automobile Burns Near Shover Springs

A 1947 auto owned by Doyle Flowers, Bruner-Ivory Handle Co. worker, caught fire and completely burned last night near Shover Springs.

Investigating State Officers Ward and Downing said Flowers was driving, smoked smoke and stopped to investigate but the flame was so large he couldn't put it out. The vehicle was a total loss.

Dulles Believes Europe Feels Unity Necessary

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — John Foster Dulles arrived in Belgium today to continue his survey of European defense planning — buoyed by finding that West Europe's leaders generally believe a common army offers the most effective guarantee of peace and security.

The two American leaders were welcomed by Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Van Zeeland, U. S. Ambassador Myron T. Cowan and other Belgian and American officials.

In a departing statement before he left Holland, Dulles told newsmen that he and Stassen "have been encouraged to find that here, as well as in the other capitals we have visited, the concept of a European Defense Community within the framework of the Atlantic community is regarded by your leaders and your people, as it is by ours, as the most effective way to insure peace and security for us all."

The secretary's seven-nation tour of key West European capitals was planned to spur action on the Juggling European army plan. He thus far has visited Rome, Paris, London, Bonn and The Hague and plans to continue on tomorrow in Luxembourg before returning to Washington.

En route to the Belgian capital, Dulles flew over some of the inundated areas of The Netherlands to complete his survey of damage caused by the past week's flood and tidal disaster. He plans a personal report to Eisenhower and the U. S. Congress on what the U. S. can do to relieve suffering and enable Holland to pull its weight in the continental defense scheme.

Dulles wants definite progress toward ratification of the six-nation army plan by April 1. Thus far, none of the participating countries — France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — has ratified the project.

One of the secretary's chief concerns both here and in Holland obviously is the impact of the North Sea flood on the defense plan. The economies of both countries have been seriously damaged by the disaster.

President Eisenhower's Cabinet in Washington yesterday named both Dulles and Stassen members of a special Cabinet committee to survey damage in Holland, Belgium and Britain — also hit by the high waters — and make recommendations for assistance to the three countries.

Both Dulles and Dutch officials declined to disclose the course of their discussions yesterday, but the usually well-informed Amsterdam newspaper Trouw reported that Holland is considering asking the U. S. to resume direct economic aid.

Reds Stop All Letter Writing to UN Camps

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — U. N. postal officers today said the North Korean and Chinese Communists stopped their people from writing Red prisoners of war in U. N. camps seven months ago.

These officers said they were given no explanation why families of Red prisoners had to stop writing.

From Dec. 3, 1951, when the first prisoner of war mail was exchanged here, until last July, the Reds turned over to Allied postal officers 30,000 letters for delivery to Communist prisoners held on Koje Island and in other U. N. POW camps.

Since July, no mail has come through for Allied-held prisoners. The Reds also appear to be discouraging Allied prisoners from writing home.

In a mail exchange Thursday, the Allied postal officer handed the Communists 1,000 letters from families of U. N. soldiers to Allied prisoners in camps in North Korea. The Communists delivered 10 letters from Allied prisoners to their families.

Warrant Officer Edwin Barry of Huntington, W. Va., postal officer in charge of POW mail, said that since the mail exchange began 18 months ago, the Allied command has delivered to the Communists 230,000 letters for U. N. prisoners. The Reds have handed the U. N. 52,000 letters from Allied prisoners to their families, Barry said.

In addition, the United Nations Command has delivered to the Communists 32,000 letters from Red prisoners held in U. N. camps addressed to their families in North Korea and China. In the last exchange Thursday, there were 1,700 letters from prisoners on Koje, Choeju and other U. N. camps to addresses in North Korea and the Chinese mainland.

Rose Garden Club Names New Officers
The Rose Garden Club held its monthly meeting Friday, February 6, in the home of Mrs. Alene Johnson with Mrs. J. C. Carlton as co-hostess.

The reception rooms were decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Dorsey McLean, Sr., president, called the meeting to order with the members repeating The Lord's Prayer. Following the reading of the minutes and treasurer's report, a report was given by the Junior Garden Club chairman. The members voted to give five dollars to the Red Cross, Heart Drive, and Cancer Drive. Eight dollars was donated to the March of Dimes.

The names submitted by the nominating committee to hold office for the next two years were accepted by the club. They are: President, Mrs. Hollis Lusk; vice president, Mrs. L. P. Lawrence; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Mason; secretary, Mrs. Harry Shivers; historian, Mrs. S. L. Murphy; chairman of the Junior Garden Club, Mrs. Jack Wilson; reporter, Mrs. Ray Allen.

Roll call of members was answered with an original Valentine verse. The program was opened with Mrs. John S. Gibson, Jr., giving a devotional on "Love." She also gave the origin of Valentine. Mrs. J. C. Carlton discussed unusual flowering shrubs.

Mrs. Dorsey McLean won first place on the exhibit "Valentine Made with Flowers." Mrs. Carlton won second.

The hostesses served a dessert plate to 15 members and one guest, Mrs. J. W. Smith.

Food Service Club Meets at Paisley
The Food Service Club held its monthly meeting Friday night in the lunchroom at Paisley School, with Mrs. Dale Tommecker, Mrs. T. C. Bryant, and Mrs. Mamie Gentry as hostesses.

After the business meeting, games were played with prizes going to the winners. Refreshments were served to the 12 members present.

The next meeting will be held March 13 at Oglesby School.

Mrs. Bernard Dunn Elected President of Nandina Club
The Nandina Garden Club met Thursday night, February 5, in the home of Mrs. Bernard Dunn with Mrs. Thomas Compton as co-hostess.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Dunn, vice-president, presided over the business session at which time the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Dunn; vice-president, Mrs. Cecil O'Brien; secretary, Mrs. Thomas Fenwick, Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Compton; historian, Mrs. Jeff Millican; and scrubbook, Mrs. Paul Bain.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. E. S. Richards, a guest of the club, gave an interesting talk on "Birds."

In the flower arrangement contest, Mrs. Thomas Fenwick, Jr., placed first, Mrs. Compton placed second, and Mrs. Jeff Millican, third.

The hostesses served a dessert plate with coffee to 14 members and Mrs. Richards.

Arkansas's Wife Seeks Permit
JONESBORO, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Farley left here by automobile today for Windsor, Canada, where she will apply at the U. S. Consulate for a permit to enter the United States as an immigrant.

The Immigration Service recently granted Mrs. Farley a 15-day extension to a 1-year visa granted her in September, 1951, to come to the United States as an exchange student.

The permit to remain in the country was due to expire Feb. 1 at which time she would have been subject to deportation.

Mrs. Farley, then Miss Sheila Brown of Hope, England, attended the University of Arkansas where she met and married Farley. They now have a 2-month-old daughter.

Thief Takes His Cue From Bible
HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—A service station operator found his copy of the New Testament opened to the 10th Chapter of St. John when he arrived at work this morning.

The first verse: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that enters not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber."

Police said the man who forced entry into the station, robbed it and opened the Testament, also robbed another station, a feed store and a grocery store here last night.

These Days

INTELLIGENT SELFINTEREST
The Eisenhower-Dulles foreign policy is a reversal of the Marshall-Acheson policy pursued by President Truman and the Roosevelt-Truman policy pursued by President Roosevelt.

When Roosevelt came into the Presidency, he tended to be isolationist in the sense that the United States stood alone, judging the conduct of the Europeans and Asiatics and adopting attitudes independently. The object was to avoid entanglements. This policy was pursued from the London Economic Conference (1933) to the Quarantine Speech (1937).

In the Quarantine Speech, Roosevelt denounced the wicked, meaning Japan and Italy, and set up moral standards which he hoped all would adhere to. From then on, the United States was deeply involved in European affairs. Ambassador Bullitt in November, 1937 visited Poland and Germany to test the possibilities of peace. British policy was fluid, hopeful that a way could be found to placate Hitler. The way turned out to be the Austrian Anschluss and Munich.

It is now known that on the eve of Munich, the principal military and political leaders, led by General Ludwig von Beck, Chief of Staff, were engaged in a heavy plot to get rid of Hitler. Hitler was saved by British appeasement, a policy in which Chamberlain was supported by Roosevelt.

The American people did not know that Roosevelt was involved in the pro-Munich negotiations. We do not yet know whether Roosevelt was informed of the Molotov-Ribbentrop negotiations which produced the Stalin-Hitler alliance. But it is clear from the evidence now available that Russia was in-sinuating a war between the United States and Japan, utilizing pro-Communist forces within the anti-Japanese public opinion.

From this time on, Roosevelt developed a role for the United States as the moral arbiter among nations, this country deciding which nation is good or bad, with which country "good nations" may do business. Despite the Stalin-Hitler alliance, of which he may not have known, Roosevelt favored Russia. This policy not only involved us in war but ultimately made the war our principal responsibility, no matter how it started or why. The United States led the world and paid the bills.

The Marshall-Acheson policy was theoretically designed to maintain a peace that had been won after World War II. It was known as early as Teheran (November, 1943) that Stalin had adopted the air of a conqueror, assuming the

Wesleyan Service Guild Has February Meeting
The February meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Methodist Church was held on Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Herbert Hawley with Miss Marguerite Avery co-hostess.

Miss Florence Gurley assisted by Mrs. J. W. Gist and Mrs. Joe T. Smith presented the program on "By One Spirit Are We One Body."

The business was conducted by the president, Miss Frances Bailey after which Miss Gurley voiced the closing prayer.

Mrs. Baker Hostess to Circle 2 of Presbyterian Church
Mrs. Ernestine Baker was hostess to Circle 2 of the Presbyterian Church at her home on Monday evening.

The chairman, Mrs. Max Bryant opened the meeting with prayer. The impressive program on "The Story of a Postage Stamp" was given by Mrs. Max Kitchens.

Mrs. Bryant led the conversation period on "Stewardship." The meeting was closed with song and prayer.

During the social hour Mrs. A. Daniels was honored with a pink and blue shower. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

WCSG Circle 4 Meets in Home of Mrs. Robert Hambricht
Circle 4 of the WCSG of the First Methodist Church met on Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Robert Hambricht with twelve members present for the regular meeting.

Mrs. Fred White, program chairman, opened the meeting with a prayer poem followed with the devotional talk given by Mrs. B. A. Warren, chairman, who also conducted the business.

Mrs. Luca May Be Envoy to Italy
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Clare Boothe Luce is the Eisenhower administration's choice for ambassador to Italy, a responsible official says. This official said yesterday the United States had already complied with the protocol of obtaining the Italian government's approval of the prospective appointment.

Mrs. Luce is a playwright, former congresswoman from Connecticut and wife of Henry R. Luce, editor-in-chief of Time, Life and Fortune. She is a convert to the Roman Catholic faith.

Army to Draft 53,000 in April
WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Army today issued a draft call for 53,000 men in April.

The April call is the same as right to dictate terms, and basing his assumption on the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact. In spite of that, at Yalta and again at Potsdam, Stalin was permitted to take the initiative and to continue to hold it until Eisenhower was elected President.

The Marshall-Acheson policy was given the formal name of a "Containment Policy," which was incorrect, because Russia was permitted to conquer the whole of China during this period. In fact, as President Eisenhower said so dramatically, even the Seventh Fleet was used to protect Communist China.

The entire China policy was based upon a plan to co-ordinate American with British policy, with Great Britain taking the lead. As the British had recognized Soviet China with unbecoming speed, our State Department did not know which way to go and therefore the American policy with regard to China was marred beyond solution. Its contradictions confused the world.

The Eisenhower-Dulles policy discards both the Roosevelt-Hopkins policy and the Marshall-Acheson policy. The repudiation was stated by Eisenhower as follows:

"We shall never acquiesce in the enslavement of any people in order to purchase fancied gain for ourselves. I shall ask the Congress at a later date to join in an appropriate resolution making it clear that this Government recognizes no kind of commitment contained in secret understandings of the past with foreign governments which permit this kind of enslavement."

This is a new policy. It repudiates the past even to the extent of the non-recognition of secret agreements improperly made. It offers to captive nations of Europe and Asia the hope that movements for freedom will be recognized and even supported. It seizes the initiative in the East of Asia and notifies those who advocate neutralism that their attitude will be resented. The new policy leaves no loopholes, for those who are doubtful, whether they are for us now or against us.

It is a wholesome policy that will clear the air of uncertainty. (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Legislators to Forest Fire Parley
LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Three members of the Legislature went last night to New Orleans for the Interstate Forest Fire Protection Conference to be held there today and tomorrow.

The three are Reps. L. H. Autry of Mississippi County and Weems Trussell of Dallas County and Sen. Tom Allen of Brinkley.

Autry is chairman of the Legislative Council and the other two are members.

That issued for March. Only the Army is drafting soldiers now. The other services have halted selective service inductions. Today's call brings to 1,361,430 the number of men drafted or earmarked for induction since September, 1950.

Of this total, the Army has been allotted 1,280,000. The Marine Corps took 81,430 draftees before it quit drafting recruits last May.

Needlecraft Club Entertained
By Mrs. C. D. Ward
A variety of spring flowers in graceful arrangements decorated the home of Mrs. C. D. Ward on Tuesday evening when she entertained the Needlecraft sewing club.

At the close of a pleasant evening spent chatting and sewing, Mrs. Ward served a dainty dessert course to fifteen members and two guests.

Mrs. Robert Peachey spent Tuesday in Texarkana. Gene Lee and Miss Sue Peachey attended the Southern State-Texas basketball game at Magnolia Tuesday evening.

Gen. Van Fleet Tells His Men Farewell
By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL, W.—Gen. James A. Van Fleet paid his last visit to the Eastern Korean battlefield today and was welcomed with thundering gun salutes, honor guards, and the strains of "Auld Lang Syne."

Arm-in-arm with his successor, Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Van Fleet was honored with glittering military pageantry unprecedented since the Korean War began.

Mass formations, martial music and bright, waving banners greeted the two generals as they planned to another. They traveled from the East Coast across half the battlefield.

Taylor, expected to inspect the front soon, stood back and smilingly joined in the tribute to the grieving, but still boyish, 60-year-old commander.

It was a demonstration of genuine affection for the retiring Van Fleet by the American and South Korean forces.

Van Fleet was in a holiday mood himself, and had smiles and handshakes for every one, from ROK soldiers to corps commanders.

Taylor replied that he hoped his record would be as successful as Van Fleet's.

The generals flew first from Seoul to the eastern end of the battlefield. They made a short helicopter flight to the battleship Missouri to visit with Vice Admiral J. J. Clark, commander of the Seventh Fleet.

Then they went to the first ROK corps, where, for the first time since the Korean War began, a whole combat division—the ROK 15th—stood in mass formation to greet the generals.

"This is a magnificent sight," Van Fleet said. Later, they inspected the Fifth, 11th, and 15th ROK divisions.

Van Fleet received a 17-gun salute from five Patton tanks at U. S. 10th corps headquarters. He said it was the first time he had received that honor.

"You have done a lot of hard work and have made great progress," Van Fleet told the commander of the new ROK 12th division, Brig. Gen. Soon Chun Keun.

"I have more than just confidence in the manner in which you defended your sector. I am very proud of the 12th division."

As Van Fleet walked to his plane after inspecting one American division, the band broke into "Auld Lang Syne" instead of the usual jaunty march.

Van Fleet was moved. He stopped for a moment, waved, then jumped in his plane and flew off.

DOROTHY DIX
A Queer Bird

Dear Miss Dix: My problem is making me a nervous wreck. I'm married quite young, and life with Phil was wonderful until we returned here, to the city where I was raised. Since then his jealousy has made my life horrible. I'm not allowed to go to any clubs, showers or anything attended by women only. If he can't go along, I can't go either. I've lost all my friends. Phil says I can't see any unmarried girl friends because all they're out for is a pick-up, which isn't true. For my mother died, I was sent for but couldn't go because Phil had to work and couldn't go with me. He claims no woman can be true, and the only way to insure fidelity is to give no freedom.

His attitude has killed all my love for him. Do you think I would be right in suing for divorce? Or should I stay on?

DONNA W.
A Subject For A Psychiatrist
Answer: Phil is the victim of a neurotic jealousy which will probably never be cured, but will, in older, become worse as he grows older. His contemptuous attitude toward women belies any hope of change, and his despicable refusal to let you attend your mother's funeral lends him as a man with absolutely no decent feelings. You mean nothing more than a chattel to him. Life with him certainly holds no happiness for you, and may even lead to tragedy. Have a talk with your clergyman and get his opinion on a separation. I recommend, also, a conference with your doctor. If either one suggests psychiatric care for your husband follow through and see if the situation improves.

Dear Miss Dix: I am one of a large family, whose parents did the best they could to give us an education and spiritual training. However, one of my sisters has chosen to live with a married man. I intend that her conduct should estrange her from the rest of the family, but some of my sisters have been accepting both of them into their homes as though they were married. I refuse to do so, and my husband agrees with my stand.

PUZZLED
Answer: Flagrant adultery certainly is not a thing to be condoned or accepted. Those of your sisters who treat the couple as honored guests are undermining the standards of their own families. How can the children of these sisters be taught right from wrong when their own parents sanction almost encouragement, so serious a sin? You quote some of your friends as saying what the erring sister does is her own business. That's true as long as her wrongdoing doesn't touch other people. When she flaunts her misdeeds to the point where the morals of younger people might be endangered, her actions become the business of every one in the family. Stealing another woman's husband is not a pretty deed, and one indulging in it should at least have the grace to keep her mode of living private.

Dear Miss Dix: Before I was married, my best girl friend tried to separate my fiancé and me. Now that we're married, my husband doesn't want her to come to our house. She and I always went around together and I would like to have her visit me.

Answer: Your husband sure has lots more sense than you have. Some women really do go out of their way to look for trouble, and you apparently are one of them. The girl friend tried, almost successfully, to woo your fiancé away.

from you, and I'd like to know what guarantee you have that the won't do the same with the man now that he's your husband? You are nursing a viper in your bosom girl, and if you want to keep a happy home, let the girl friend go her own way.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 15 and I like a boy who lives quite a distance away. He wants to write to me, but I'm worried about what my parents would say. They don't know about him yet. Should I tell them he wants to write, or correspond secretly? Also if he comes down to see me, should I introduce him to my parents?

SUZANNE
Answer: One of the most foolish things a girl can do is to correspond with, or see, a boy secretly. If you're ashamed to tell your folks about the boy, he's not worth bothering with. By all means take Mom into your confidence, and if the boy comes to visit, introduce him to your family.

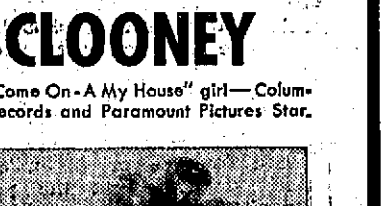

Dear Miss Dix: My boy friend is in the Army and I just feel lost without him. We have been going steady for two years. He wants to get married but I think I should wait until I finish school. I still have a year to go. I have lost track of all my girl friends since I have spent so much time with the boy. I'm so lonesome, what can I do?

ROSEANNA
Answer: It shouldn't be too difficult for you to pick up the threads of old friendship, or weave new ones. So many girls are sharing your problem that I'm sure they'd like to band together for mutual comfort. Scout around among your schoolmates and see how many girls are lonesome because their boys are in service. Set up some sort of a project such as sending a pack age to one of the boys each week, or month, as your finances permit. Periodically then, each boy will receive a box from home into which is packed all the good wishes of his old pals — as well as more substantial items.

WALTON'S GULF SERVICE & GARAGE

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1932
By King Features Syndicate.

Now that the hubbub of inauguration and the importance of the disclosures will not be drowned out, I will present an expose of Drew Pearson's hidden interest in the lawsuit of an underworld press agent for the late Bugsy Siegel, against Senator Pat McCarran and others. The purpose appears to have been not so much to recover damages alleged to have been suffered by the press agent who is an ex-convict as to punish McCarran for his patriotic service in preparing the new immigration law and in exposing Communists in government.

As I have hitherto disclosed, Pearson has employed at least two communists as "leg men" and he exerted himself during the war to get commissions for communist veterans of the Red legions who had fought Soviet Russia's bull-war in Spain. He did not disclose the fact that the men for whom he persistently tried to get army commissions were communists. If he had done so, some of the papers which buy his copy would have refused to publish it and Pearson's propaganda power would have diminished. In recent years, since communism became less popular and profitable, Pearson has sometimes professed to be anti-communist, a trick used by many others who played with the Reds in the Roosevelt-Truman era.

Pearson's own lawyer, William A. Roberts, of Washington, who brought the law-suit for the ex-convict against McCarran, is also the lawyer for an abandoned Chinese Nationalist general, who was arrested in Mexico charged with stealing $7,000,000 of Nationalist money, actually provided by American taxpayers. The general is a successful client. Pearson steered him into relations with his attorney, Roberts.

One of his many efforts to stir up disclosures of his mendacious faking journalism by means of law-suits, Pearson has filed a weird action in Washington against Joe McCarthy, Fulton Lewis, Pegler and other defendants, some of them apparently flititious, alleging a conspiracy to put him out of business. I would gladly own that I have tried diligently to convince the public that Pearson is a lying faker and scoundrel because that is the function of an honest journalist. I devoted no conspiracy and I detested the task long before I ever met McCarthy or Fulton Lewis. I have met Lewis only four times as far as I can remember. I had met McCarthy not more than three times, as I recall, when we were charged with conspiring. Some of the other co-defendants I have neither met nor heard of otherwise. The American press would be far better off without the likes of Pearson and if anything I have said or shall say tends to that desirable end, I shall have rendered a public service. But I always act on my own without concert or conspiracy.

Meanwhile, Pearson has written motivated lies and suppressed relevant and modifying facts about the ex-convict's suit against McCarran in Nevada. He said nothing about the criminal record of Roberts, although, of course, disclosure of that fact would tend to give the readers a fairer estimate of the character of the action against the senator.

Of late, Pearson, with enormous offensiveness, has been sending out circulars offering for sale "a new, high-level, confidential weekly correspondence service available to a limited number of fact-seeking business executives." In his introductory comment he describes himself as "America's distinguished Washington reporter and news analyst whose record for accuracy and exclusive news beats is recognized from coast to coast." He is asking $50 a year. A typical high-level statement in the issue for Jan. 24 is that "open warfare has broken out between Eisenhower and Taft. Taft is bitter and vindictive." This of course is a lie.

It is not news that Pearson has lied about many famous citizens and has been forced to retract some of his worst lies. If he had ever shown any disposition to reform, the case would be different. But his vicious slanders of James Forrestal and Charles E. Wilson have merely set a standard for further lies. Admiral Ernest King, in his war memoirs, tells us that Pearson wrote that King had wrecked a naval aircraft trying to fly off the water when he was too old for that sort of thing. Actually, King writes, he was sitting in the plane as a passenger, a qualified young pilot was in command and the accident was unavoidable. At any rate, King was not flying the ship and Pearson lied when he said he was.

In another typical instance, Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church, conducted a workshop at the Hazel Street Methodist Church on Wednesday, Feb. 4. The group included twenty pastors and laymen from various Arkansas towns. Dr. Lester is a masterful teacher, well trained by the General Board of Evangelism, his tour will take him to Little Rock, Oklahoma City and Kansas City during next week. Lunch was served by the local membership.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wickware of Battle Creek, Mich., are visiting Mrs. Wickware's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Paucello.

Porks Journey to Texas for Pair of Games

DALLAS 10 — Six teams see action tonight in the marbled-up Southwest Conference basketball race. Only frontrunning Texas Christian will be idle.

The Baylor Bears, tied with TCU for the lead with identical 4-2 records, invade College Station to play Texas A&M. Arkansas, with a 2-3 mark, tries to even its loop record against five-time loser Southern Methodist at Dallas.

Rice and Texas, both sporting 3-2 record and tied for third and fourth places behind Baylor and TCU, clash at Austin.

The race really got tangled Tuesday night when Baylor edged their leading Texas, 60-59, to go into a front-page tie with Texas Christian. TCU had strengthened its position Monday night with a hard fought 40-46 victory over Arkansas.

Rice beat Sam Houston State of the Lone Star Conference, 81-51, Thursday night and Texas A&M shipped SMU 51-43, Tuesday night in the other games of the week.

Baylor could pull ahead of the field tonight by whipping the Aggies.

Should the Aggies lose to Baylor and Texas beats Rice, the Longhorns could move back into a first place tie with defending champion TCU.

Actually, the combinations are too many to list, but if Arkansas beats SMU, as normally would be expected, it would move into a 500 tie with the loser of the Texas Rice tussle.

But the Arkansas game, with the Porkers' stellar Walt Kearns on the injured list, and SMU's Art Barnes on the mend from a muscle ailment, looks like the winless Mustangs' chance for a conference victory.

The Mustangs won the conference preseason tournament in Dallas but collapsed in conference play when Barnes went out of action. On the other hand, Arkansas can't fail to win if the Porkers will have visions of a conference championship.

It all adds up to one point: The championship may not be decided until the night of March 3 when the season ends with Rice playing SMU at Dallas and Texas at meeting the defending champs, TCU, at Fort Worth.

Pearson recently wrote that Senator Barry Goldwater, of Arizona, a Republican who was elected in the November landslide, had been refused permission to play an Arizona golf course because he was a Jew and that Mr. Goldwater had made the degrading reply that his mother had been a Gentile and he therefore thought he should be permitted to play nine holes. Mr. Goldwater is highly respected throughout Arizona and is welcome to any club that he cares to visit. No such episode ever occurred in his life and the statement that it did occur is a vicious lie reflecting indignity and discredit on Senator Goldwater.

More recently, Pearson wrote that Senator Joe McCarthy gave a great boom party in Washington and that Mrs. Herman Walker, the wife of the Idaho senator, exclaimed "Wheel! This is just like Paris! Walker called up Pearson, told him that Mrs. Walker was a modest, gentle lady who took about one cocktail a month and threatened to break his neck if he didn't retract a statement which made it appear that she had been tight at a wild party. Pearson said he would "check his facts" and, in a few days, printed a correction.

He said another McCarthy, not Joe, had been the host but did not apologize to Mrs. Walker so he probably will catch another bust in the nose at an early date.

It was Pearson's foul and absolutely false charge that James Forrestal had played the coward when Mrs. Forrestal was being robbed by armed bandits that caused his standing suit against me in New York for the conventional million dollars. I called him a lying blackguard. Already two sets of lawyers have run out on him and the latest attorney, Bartley Crum, recently has been trying to quit.

The first lawyer was Morris Ernst. He claims that he has been an aggressive anti-communist for 20 years but he was Heywood Brown's lawyer and close personal friend and attorney for the New York newspaper guild when Brown was a notorious Red and the guild was heavily infested with communists and followed the party line. Ernst would have the dirty lie to devil me with a law-suit but Pearson's case was so bad that Ernst quit cold.

Crum came in later, a weird character who has been deep in Communist dealings for years but now says that he was taken in. A few weeks ago, Crum called on my lawyers requesting permission to drop it. He said he had Pearson's authorization. He was told to bring in the papers properly signed and to warn Pearson that he need not expect any exchange of "compliments" or any promise that I would desist from exposing his perfidy.

Thereafter Crum kept delaying. Apparently some other counsel had advised Pearson to keep the suit in force. At any rate, Crum couldn't deliver and he indicated that he was going to get out. Perhaps some other lawyer will be reckless enough to take Pearson to trial so that there will be a judicial record that he was held by a "jury of his peers" to be a liar, a faker, and a pro-communist propagandist who has employed communists on his staff.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (U)—The baseball world has been treated for the past week to the intriguing spectacle of Branch Rickey trying to peddle the National League's greatest home-run hitter, Ralph Kiner, without notable success.

It is very unusual for a club to admit publicly that a star of Ralph Kiner's magnitude is on the block. In fact, we cannot recall quite a similar instance in a long acquaintance with the strange ways of big league baseball. That the Pittsburgh slugger was not snapped up in a hurry by some pennant-starved club must qualify as the mystery of the week to many a baseball student.

Well, if you happen to be one of them, we'll tell you something—a majority of the men within the game whom we have heard frankly doubt that he will be able to make a deal. They could be proved wrong at any minute, but they think Kiner still will be wearing a Pirate uniform when the club opens its training camp at Havana.

Through there are other faces to the situation, the main reason for their skepticism is that shopping big salary of Ralph's, believed to have been $80,000 last year, Kiner has indignantly refused to accept a maximum 25 percent cut for the coming season.

It shows what a fix a team can get itself into when it permits one salary for beyond any of his teammates. Not that Kiner hasn't been worth his large stipend, because he has. He has been a terrific individual draw in Pittsburgh.

Little Rock in Big Seven Lead

By The Associated Press
The biggest three of the Big Seven Conference basketball race came through again last night, but both runnerup Ft. Smith and third-place Pine Bluff had to hustle from behind for their victories.

By contrast, league-leading Little Rock stayed in front all the way to whip El Dorado, 67-57, with comparative ease.

Ft. Smith trailed from the start until the last five minutes, then the score at 32-32 and then beat North Little Rock, 35-34, in overtime on a field goal and free throw by Ronnie Bateman.

Hot Springs led Pine Bluff's Zebras, 23-15, at halftime. Bob Weaver's shooting from the sides put Pine Bluff ahead, 29-23, in the

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

ROM was in his room, writing, but Deborah was glad to be alone for a little while. She changed her dress, went out and sat in one of the canvas chairs under the cherry tree. She felt tired.

She had not intended to let herself think of Rudolph Petersen until she was rested, but now her thought went of itself to his generosity to that look in his eyes when he stepped back from the car window. "A nice way to reward him!" But he had not asked it as reward—he was not looking even for thanks: he had told her that this merger was as much to his advantage as to Will's and he wasn't a man to say things he did not mean. She drew straighter in her chair. "You were right to stop him! At our ages we'll be better friends for just being good friends!"

But, in spite of this stout assertion, a sigh escaped her lips, lifting from a sudden queer ache in her heart, and she felt tears in her eyes again.

She was glad to hear Martha Purdy's voice behind her. "Hello, Mrs. Brent! Looks as though you were resting, but mind if I disturb it?"

"Not a bit—I'll like it. Sit down here with me."

Martha Purdy sat down. "I can only stay a moment—I've a pie in the oven." Mrs. Brent, it was commissioned at the meeting of the Bazaar committees last week to ask you if you'd contribute some of your soup to the food putting it off for it seemed kept to ask you, considering a well, everything. But... Martha gave her quick, short laugh. "Maybe it's a gesture that shouldn't be overlooked!"

Deborah laughed. "Maybe it is! I'll send for a case—tell them I'll donate it to the Bazaar."

"Oh, Mrs. Brent, you make it so easy! And I was dreading so to ask you!"

She got up from her chair, stood over Deborah, a twinkle in her eyes. "I wouldn't be a bit surprised if you were invited to pour coffee, the afternoon of the Bazaar! And you know that's a distinct honor!"

"My goodness—a what's happened here?" Then Martha shook her head. "My pie'll burn if I go into it. But before I run back home—Mrs. Brent, Walter told me about that will, that this house is yours. I hope awfully that you intend to stay here!"

"Well, came through the trolley. She had the catalogues in her my mind to go to talk with you."

Whatever's happened?" She knew something had, by his voice, his-her. On this day to be memorable for its happenings, she could expect anything.

He pulled a chair close to hers. "Your new estate, Aunt Debbie! I haven't had a chance since I heard of it to tell you how deeply pleased I am over it. My ball team beat the Norfolk Cubs yesterday. Two friends of Mrs. D'Arby's are joining the church. I've three more good prospects, back country..."

"John, there's more—get to it. His face sobered. "Yes, there's more. Lemuel Sims stopped at the parsonage two hours ago, to speak for the deacons. They are offering me a three-year contract to preach here in their church."

"John, my boy!" Deborah caught his hand, squeezed it. "All your worry was for nothing!"

"My worry, maybe—my prayers? To be thought worthy of this field here. I am told that the deacons received a letter signed by a considerable group of the women of the church asking that this contract be offered to me. His smile came back. "It's not for me to question how it came about—only to be grateful that I am accepted."

Deborah smiled, remembering that Martha Purdy had said a lot had happened at that last meeting of the church women. A tree-ore, all, perhaps, between those and against John Wendell and those against Deborah Brent. Well, it was a good thing that air somehow. Then she remembered that she was planning to give John some sound advice and this was her opportunity. She said briskly, "And now, John..."

"Well, there's talk of that. But you can tell Susan there's nothing to it. Now go along—you're wasting time here with me. Oh, no, a minute—if she says she has to stay with her father and the boy, and she probably will, you tell her I'm here to look after them!"

She smiled after him, yet saw his tall figure in a blur, for, for the third time in this afternoon, tears filled her eyes.
